“ Rest in peace Uncle Barry, you are loved and are already missed. My Uncle Barry was a quiet man with a razor sharp wit. Just because he wasn't dominating the conversation did not mean he wasn't listening, and then at the perfect time would deliver a classic one liner that would make the room laugh out loud. His sense of humor was also on display in some of his choices of clothing, most memorable being his “BahHumbug” sweatshirt that became as much a part of Christmas as the tree itself
As a child I was amazed that my Uncle Barry was able to make his own movie, I was small but I remember he worked tirelessly on it and I will forever remember watching “America Burning”
My thoughts are with my Aunt Jodie and my cousins John and Matt, in this time of loss I am comforted that they have each other to rely on for support and to heal.

“ My Uncle Barry will be missed by all who knew him. He had a unique, wry sense of humor — a very “laid back” and dry, analytical way of looking at things that was often amazingly funny. It was part of his general way, and it's what I think of first when I think of him. It puts a smile on my face every time. I will miss him. My heart hurts for Jodi, who loved him like no other and for Matt & Jon, who I know did not want to say good bye yet to such a great father. Sending my deepest condolences to all of you.
