“ The Ciardi family wishes to extend our deepest sympathies to the Symeon family upon the passing of Emily. For so many years Emily was a good neighbor to everyone living nearby on Broad St. and for many more years after moving remained a friend to our mother. But to me Mrs. Symeon meant much more - she was like a second mother. So much of my childhood memories are of time spent around her and it's through her kindness and generosity I was treated like an unofficial member of the Symeon family. Even to the last, I was always happy to hear from her and to know that she was doing well when we traded cards at Christmas. It's only when you become an adult and have children of your own do you realize what a special person Emily was. I can't image many parents putting up with a fourth contributor to the noise, constant motion and minor mischief generated by their own three boys. I would like to think that her long life was some kind of reward for all she did for her family and for others - including me.

“ I am so glad I had the pleasure to get to know Emily so well when I managed Wormser Congregate, the senior residence where she lived for the past almost 10 years. She was the model resident as she aged so gracefully and actively, always concerned for others.We celebrated her 100th Stolat birthday February 12, 2016. I learned so much from her, through her positivity and Faith and active lifestyle. An inspiration on how to live for all of us. A beautiful soul.
